The Enemies of Workingmen.

A large and hence gathered in the Venable-Street Baptist church Sunday evening to hear the second of Dr. R. H. Pitt's sermons to wage-workers. The theme was "Every form of existence," said the speaker, "from the lowest vegetable to the highest spiritual is subject to hostile and I formation the hostile sometimes become friendly influences. By a strange transformation the hostile sometimes become friendly influences. By a strange transformation the hostile sometimes become histility influences. By a strange transformation the hostile sometimes become friendly and the ffreeldly become hostile. The soft shower which refreshes and revives the drooping flower may become the stinging hail or the clinging snow, whose biting frost shall chill its sap and haston its death. Life in all its myriad forms is but a long, inevitable struggle. The gnarled and storm-swept oak, type of rugged strength, bears in every irregularity of its tranches, the scars of its innumerable conflicts. This law of successful and expensions, and these influences, favorable or in-mical, become more numerous as we pass from the simpler into the more complex manifestations of life.

INFLUENTIAL DANGERS THAT THREATEN,

"My humbler task to-night is to describe and emphasize a few of the influential dangers which threaten the security and happiness of the people among whom I have spent most of my ministerial life."

The speaker discussed briefly the disposition to recard capital as a deadly fee of laboring-men. He said that he would never agree to condone the wrongs which wage-earners had often endured at the hands of corporations, whose wealth they had themselves created. Power was only too apt to be abused, whether it was in the hands of capitalists or labor organizations. But there was no natural antipathy between capital and labor and friendlier counsels were prevailing. He further said that so steadfast, was his belief that capital was the natural ally of the laborer that he hoped to see the day when the workingmen should have more of this much-maligned enemy in their possession. And this was within the range of possibility, he thought, if the earnings of arduous toil that new passed over the counter into the till of the barkeeper could, instead, go to the savings banks. The speaker deplored the tendency growing stronger all the time in the mechanical world to limit the scope of the mechanics work, and contrasted the methods of olden times when boys would learn such things as a coach maker's trade with this age of inventions when a man only learns to operate machinery which does the work.

WILL STUNT DEVELOPMENT.

WILL STUNT DRVELOPMENT.

Out of this system would come, he thought, stunted physical development. And as there was here no demand upon the intellect, no challenge of mechanical skill, the level of the company of no appeal to the imagination—in a word, no education of hand or brain or heart—the effect would be inevitably disastrous. He expressed the belief that many sought resort of labor in the coarse excitement of drink and gaming.

These twin evils he emphasized and dweit upon at length, urging his hearers to beautify and adorn their homes, filling them with books and pictures, magazines, and papers, and to find relief from their daily drudgery in the society of those they loved. The long winter evenings might be made delightful in song and reading in the humblest cottage. numblest cottage.

He insisted that there was grave peril to workingmen, especially in the present and growing disregard for the Lord's day, and urged them to steadfastly resist the encroachments upon it. DANGER FROM TWO SOURCES

"It is in danger," he said, "from two sources—the cupidity of corporations and the cupidity of workingmen. You can the cupidity of workingmen. You can settle this serious problem very promptly and satisfactorily by simply refusing to work on Sunday."

Concluding, the speaker cautioned his hearers against the danger of becoming indifferent and callous, and urged them to be hopeful and aspiring for themselves and their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, finding solace for their sorrow, strength for their burdens, good their children, fi delicate hue and delightful fragrance suring. So from the humblest walks of life, under the Gospel's genial influence, come bright and beautiful examples of untring diligence, serene patience, and rare faithfulness. View.

Elevator mission was admitted into the association, but as its life was so brief I did not enumerate it above.

You will observe that the conversions are $1 ess than during the previous year and the collections $50.40 has.

The association has donated $200 to the Seventh-Street mission, and has a balance in the treasury of $50.39.

Five of the schools report no conversions and three of those have reported none for the two years past.

Neither our roll strength nor our average attendance has increased to that degree that we had looked for.

I call your special attention to the number of new scholars brought in (2,055), and then leave with you this query: Cannot some way be devised by which we can the better hold fast to the scholars we get?

In the perorashis sermon Dr. Hoge produced a of all antithesis to the pathetis desired of what must have been the disment of Moses when God refused that he was after sitted to pass beyond Jordan, when, as, he appeared at the transfiguration of a communed with Christ. An impressive lesson drawn from the burial of Mosos in a heathen land was that God did not confine His blessings to one people.

The Enemies of Workingmen.

Respectfully submitted.

There were no set speeches for the occasion, the meeting being open to all desiring to participate. Addresses were delivered by Rev. J. M. Frost, D. D. Judge B. A. Hancock, and Mr. T. J. Todd. They were all practical talks and very interesting.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the unanimously re-election of the present incumbents, as fol-lows: T. H. Ellett, president; R. A. Gary, vice-president; W. B. Daniel, secretary; Josiah Ryland, Jr., treasurer; Dr. George B. Stael swifter.

B. Steel, auditor.

The association adjourned to meet again the second Sunday in Apr.l with the First church.

The Methodist Sunday-School Society held its monthly meeting at Park-Place church at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The attendance was large and would have been greater but for the fact that all of the ministry of the sunday and sunday and sunday and sunday are supported by the support of t ance at the funeral of the venerable Rev. R. A. Armistend.

Mr. Charles W. Hunter presided, and Mr. T. L. D. Walford acted as secretary in the absence of Mr. Charles P. Rady, who was detained at home by sickness. Very encouraging reports were read from the schools in this city and Manchester.
The principal address was made by Rev. Mr. Wickham, State agent of the Sunday-School Union. Brief speeches were also made by Messrs. Albert L. West, Gilbert J. Hunt, J. Thompson Brown, and H. C. Osterbind. The singing by the children was a very agreeable feature.

Among the Samarian Hills.

Among the Samarian Hills.

Among the Samarian Hills.

At the First Presbyterian church Sunday night the vastor, Rev. Dr. Kerr, afforded his vast audience another rare treat in his seventh lecture on the "Land of Holy Light." His pen-pictures were vivid and striking, and his audience lingered with him at Dothan and recalled the strange scenes in the early history of Josephthence to Sheckem, now known as Nablus, and said to be the most prosperous and wealthy city in Palestine. Its history began four thousand years ago, when Jerusalem had no existence, extends through Scriptures from Abraham to Christ, and continues to the present day. Near by is Jacob's well, where Christ preached a matchless sermon to a congregation of Jacob's well, where Christ preached a matchless sermon to a congregation of one. The city of Samaria was another point of great interest in this lecture, being a noted city of Central Palestine, founded by Omri, King of Israel. It lies some thirty miles north of Jerusalem in the centre of a beautiful plain surrounded by historic hills. The reputed tomb of John the Baptist is here and many other points of interest to the traveller.

Rich practical Gospel truths erop out in all these lectures and none can go away unbenefited. His next lecture will be on "The Jordan and the Dead Sea." Union Station.

On Sunday morning Rev. Dr. Whitehead delivered an intensely interesting address on the death of John Wesley to a large au-dience at the Union-Station Methodist dence at the Union-Station Methodist church.

At night Rev, George H, Ray, the pastor, preached from Hebrew xii., 4: "He being dead yet speaketh." Mr. Ray developed and illustrated the thought that a man's influence is felt in the world after his death and found in the teachings and work of Mr. Wesley a beantiful illustration of the text. When Mr. Wesley died there were not 500 preachers and there were about 80,000 members. After the lapse of 100 years there are more than 40,000 itinerants, more than 90,000 local preachers, and more than 6,000,000 communicants, representing one fourth of the Protestant population of the world.

After the evening sermon there were three baptisms and nine admitted to church fellowship.

Bey. Mr. There has not every converted as a result of the recent meetings at the East-End Baptist church. Mr. C. R. Woodruff, business manager of the National Baptist of Philadelphia, attend-ed the Baptist Ministers' Conference yesterday morning.

Rev. J. R. Moffett, of North Danville, was also present at the meeting. He goes from here to Norfolk to lecture in the interest of temperance.

Rev. George F. Williams, of this city, filled the pulpit of the First Baptist church of Petersburg Sunday.

Rev. R. W. Cridlin, president of the Southside Female Seminary of Burkeville, Va., was in the city yesterday.

Dr. Charles H. Corey delivered at the Venable-Street Baptist church Sunday morning an exceedingly interesting lecture on his recent trip to Egypt. At the request of the pastor and the congregation he consented to lecture again next Sunday on his trip through Palestine.

The Fourth-Street Baptist church, Rev. H. F. Williams, pastor, will have its anniversary business meeting next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This church is just one year old, having been organized the third Sunday in March, 1880. The mission, of course, dates back several years prior to that time. When the independent organization was effected the church had less than fifty members. Now it has a few over one hundred and there are additions almost every week.

Professor Winston's second lecture on "The Old Electricity and the New" will be given in the college chapel to-night. Having completed the subject of Frictional Electricity in his first lecture, he will to-night discuss the Electricity of the Rattery.

to-night discuss the Electricity of the Battery.

A historical survey of the successive steps from Galvani's original experiment with the frogs down to the present era of telegraphs and telephones and peean eables will be presented and illustrated both by lantern slides and by selected experiments. The subject will be treated popularly and so as to be within the comprehension of the average citizen.

The Professor will probably take time to explain those puzzling terms volt, and ampere, and ohm, and the like, and thus render a service to many of our people.

The remarkable andience that braved the storm to hear the first lecture on last Tuesday night gives indication of the popularity of this course of lectures and suggests that good seats will be at a premium to-night. It may be well to repeat that the public is invited.

Rice appeared in court to testify, but was considerably "done up," having been badly beaten about the face and eyes by the accused. He stated that he went into Onesty's place Saturday night to get some oysters, but, before taking any, he requested the accused to let him see one or two, so he could tell whether they were good or not. The "bivalves," thus sampled, did not suit Rice, but, notwithstanding this, Martyny charged him five cents for the two he had eaten.

A friend who was with Rice made some remarks and a dispute followed, where-upon the friend of Rice cursed Martyny. At this the accused jumped over the counter and struck Rice in the face. He was fined $25 and costs.

After yon have got so that you can break ground—that is, drop your hands, walk two or three paces away, and then return and take your proper place immediately. You should commence the leg movements advancing a step with the left foot, followed by the right. Then reture a step with the right foot followed by the left. In all cases the feet should be kept the same distance spart. After this advancing and retiring practice the movement vice versa. When you can do these things perfectly it is time to begin to try the left lead, and right here let me say that whenever you lead, whether it be with the left or right hand, you should spring off the ball of the right foot slightly, lifting your left foot from the ground as you start to lead. This will throw the whole weight of your body with your blow, and will enable you to strike a much harder blow than you would otherwise be able to do. In leading off with your left you should turn the head and body to your right, at the same time guarding your face from your opponent's blow by bringing your right arm up across your face and about two inches in front of it.

It may take you some time before you will be able to do all these things perfectly, but if you spend the time of seven or even ten lessons in getting the position and left lead down perfect it will be time well spent.

Above all things don't try and advance

Above all things don't try and advance too fast, but make sure that you can execute one point well before going on with the next one. Then if it is possible for you to do so get some one to spar with you who knows a great deal more about boxing than you do. By doing this you will find that you can advance much faster than you would sparring with some one on the same level as yourself or inferior in point of knowledge in boxing. By sparring often with a quick and clever man you will yourself gain quickness, while if you spar as repeatedly with a slow-moving boxer you will without knowing it get slower in your own movements. Look out for this, for a slow boxer is an abomination.

The next point should be, in my opinion, the lead, step, and return.

Lead, stop, and return.

To do this you will take your position in front of your adversary and stepping in lead your left at his head. This lead he must stop with the palm of his right hand, and then stepping in himself he lets go his left atyour head, which you must stop in the same manner. Now a great many who are learning to spar, in stopping a blow bring up the arm straight, eatching the blow on the back of the hand or fore-arm. This often hurts the arm and makes one lame. In order to avoid this, when bringing up the right to stop a blow, turn the fore-arm about so that the palm of the glove is outward. Then the blow will land on the palm of the hand and will not hurt in the least, while you have an additional advantage of being able to throw off his lead in a direction which will often prove advantageous to yourself. Of course you must step in with the leit foot, followed by the right when leading with the left, and then immediately after the blow lands step back with the right going with the left, and then immediately after the blow lands step back with the right point is the straight counter at the head. To do this point requires a great deal of cantion. When sperring wait until your opponent leads with his left at your iace. Immediately turn the head to the rig close with your adversary, and if you place your head close to his breast while you are clinched he will not be able to hurt you much. By observing this you may save yourself from getting many a hard knock, as by being in so close to your opponent you take the striking power away from him.

The next lesson is a cross-counter at the body. To do this properly wait until your opponent leads at you with his left. Then throw up your own left to gnard your face; at the same time drop the head and body forward and send in your right for your opponent's left side. If done right your adversary's lead will pass over your right shoulder, and you should turn your body to your left with your blow. The blow can also be delivered without waiting for your opponent to lead, and can be practiced with telling effect, as your blow will land somewhere in the region of the heart, and these heart blows have a tendency to deaden a man all over.

HIS TESTIMONIAL. RESENTED TO THE PAST-GRAND OFFICER BY JULIUS STRAUS.

Reinach-The Postal Telegraph Case-Death of Mr. Howlett,

PETERSBURO, VA., March 9.-Quites large emblage met in the Hebrew synagogue Sunday afternoon to witness the pres tion of the testimonial voted by the Distriet Grand Lodge No. 5, L. O. B. B., to its retiring grand officer, Mr. A. S. Reinach, of this city. Mr. Eddie Eigenbrun, president of the local branch of the order at the meeting, who introduced Mr. Julius Straus, of Richmond, second vice-pres Straus, of Richmond, second vice-presi-dent of the Grand Lodge, who was deputi-zed to make the presentation. Mr. Straus performed this duty very gracefully and eloquently, and in his remarks made per-sonal retremees to Mr. Reinach which could not have been other than exceeding-ly gratifying. Mr. Reinach's response in accepting the testimonial was very appro-priate and evinced much feeling.

AN ELOQUENT TRIBUTE.

Senator William Lovenstein, of Richmond, was next introduced. The genial Senator is well and widely known here, and he never fails to receive a warm welcome when he comes to Petersburg. After referring to the eremonies which had just preceded, he gave an interesting history of the B'nai B'rith, its objects and purposes, what it had accomplished, and what it is doing for humanity. He urged in strong and elequent language the young men to become members of the order and to assist in the development of its noble works, not only for the intrinsic benefits and advantages they would themselves derive, but for the nobler purpose of aiding in the great work the order was doing in elevating the oppressed, in succoring the needy, and dispoling the prejudices existing against the Jewish race. Mr. Lovenstein also warmly urged the organization by the ladies of an auxiliary society to assist in the collection of funds for the home in Atlanta.

Mr. Henry Hutzler of Richmond, also

Atlanta.

Mr. Henry Hutzler, of Richmond, also made a fine speech, urging the generous support of the order. He counselled the young men that dollars and cents would not alone accomplish the grand results hoped for in securing the manbood of the race, but education, culture, and refinement were even more to be desired, as such qualifications are recognized in every community.

The commissioners in the case of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company against the Norfolk and Western Railroad against the Norfolk and Western Railroad Company, charged with the duty of assessing damages to the railroad company incident to the putting up of its polesand running its line on the right of way of the railroad in Prince George county, will resume their session in this city to morrow, and will hear other witnesses. It is probable that the commissioners will be in session all this week.

The testimony of the railroad experts thus far taken has developed some very interesting and encouraging facts and figures—showing the wonderful improvement and increase in the traffic of the railroad company on that part of its line between Petersburg and Norfolk as well as over other portions of the road, and showing also, in the opinion of these experts, the necessity of the early double-tracking of the road over this division. It is believed that when the Clinch-Valley and Ironton extensions—expected to be completed in the course of the next few months—are finished the increase in the freight and passenger traffic will be far beyond the anticipations of the most sanguine; that a double track will be rendered an urgent necessity; and that our Southside counties, cities, and towns along the line of the railroad will be quickened into new life under their improvement.

DEATH OF AN AGED MAN.

Mr. James C. Howlett died at his home, in Chesterfield county, on Saturday, in the eighty-first year of his age. His health had been very infirm for some mouths nest. Mr. Howlett was at one time one of the wealthiest citizens in the county, but misfortunes befell him, as they have befallen many others, and in recent years his circumstances have been very moderate. His funeral took place this afternoon.

The almost continued rains since the ad-The almost continued rains since the advent of the new year have thrown the farmers throughout this section far behind in their work. Indeed they have been able to do very little in the way of work upon the farm, and for many years past they have not been so backward. The roads everywhere are in terrible condition and it is almost impossible to bring produce to market or to have supplies delivered at home.

by President Holt and Speaker Doughton and the legislative session ended. There was never more general satisfaction at an adjournment, for the public was heartily tired of this Legislature.

What is Scrofula

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or many other manifestamons usually ascribed to "humors." It is a more formidable enemy than consumption or cancer alone, for scrofula combines the worst possible features of both. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How can it be cured? By taking Hood's Sarraparilla, which, by the cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. For all affactions of the blood Hood's Sarvaparilla is unequalled, and some of the cures it has effected are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula in any of its various forms, be sure to give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.
